Winnipeg—An attractive rail travel bargain to the Pacific Coast is announced by R. Creelman, passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways. These special low fares will be available from all stations in Ontario, Port Arthur, Armstrong and west, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to Blue River, McBride and points west to Vancouver and Victoria, during the period March 18th to 26th.

Tickets will be good for thirty days return and there will be choice of accommodation in air conditioned coaches, tourist and standard sleeping cars.

Similar low fares will be on sale from Pacific Coast points to the Prairies from March 19th to 27th, with a 30-day return limit. On the west-bound excursion, passengers will be allowed at Edmonton, Calgary and points west, while on the excursion from the Coast to the Prairies, travellers may break their journey at Jasper, Calgary and Edmonton only.

In planning this excursion, the railway felt that it would have a worthwhile appeal at this season of the year to the residents of the Prairies to get away for a few weeks to the earlier spring at the Coast cities.

Each year, this excursion is growing in popularity and Mr. Creelman states that preparations are being made to handle a record number of passengers this spring.

Another Suspicious Outbreak of Fire

About six o'clock on Sunday morning last fire was discovered in the waiting room at the skating rink.

Chief Renville and Mr. Carl Torg fought it with chemicals, and had some trouble extinguishing the blaze which had burnt a hole in the outside wall and had commenced to eat through the slating in the walls.

From information to hand it is stated that the lock on the rink had been broken and old rags and sacks piled against the wall of the structure and apparently set on fire. Owing to the loss of the slating the fire did not burn readily and was put out before much damage was done.

No doubt this fire will be carefully investigated by the authorities, as it further strengthens the idea held by many that a firebug is operating in town in view of the recent fire at the S.S. auditorium.

Mr. Erle Hefferman was a tripper to Edmonton for a couple of days last week on business and pleasure bent.

The Blue Willow event (hampers and roses) has still to be played off between the Smith and Schlitz rinks for first and second places.

The first in the Merchants' event (hampers) was to the rink skipped by Mrs. E. Smith with Mrs. E. Gehring, third, Mrs. B. Bilby, jr., second and Mrs. G. Gilm, lead.

The second (like aces) was to the Sawyer rink of Edgerton with Mrs. Darling, third, Miss J. Davidson, second and Miss Pawsey, lead.

The Citizens' event is yet to be played off for first and second places by the Schlitz, Stevens and Nordstrom rinks.

The Shaw rink of Edgerton with Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Ramsey and Miss Kelly won the Hard Luck (sandwich spread and lard).

The first in the Grand Aggregate (set of five) was to the rink skipped by Mrs. B. Smith, which won seven out of eight games, and the second (passes to the Elite theatre) to Miss J. Sawyer's rink of Edgerton.

The ladies responsible for the whole affair extend their sincere thanks to the numerous merchants and citizens who so generously assisted them by the donations of goods and cash to fill out the prize list.

Moved by Coun. Smallwood that Secretary write the Bureau of Relief re James Kelly and application for farm help unemployment relief, that this council feel that an imposition is made in this case as said applicant can only be classed as a transient indigent, having no home, asking that same be reconsidered and application approved as from date of application under the $5.00 relief scale with George Olders.—Carried.

Lady Curlers Hold Pleasant Bonspiel

After three days of struggles for supremacy the several rinks of lady curlers entered in the women's bonspiel came to an end on Saturday due to the bad condition of the ice caused by the warmer weather.

However, even though there are a couple of events yet to be played off (these being wholly between local rinks) all expressed themselves as having a first-class time.

The first in the Grand Challenge was won by the rink skipped by Miss Jessie Sawyers of Edgerton, with Mrs. Brown playing third, Mrs. Stratton second and Mrs. Blair lead; second (toilet sets) was won by the rink skipped by Mrs. O. Hannah with Mrs. W. Stuart, third, Mrs. G. Murray, second and Mrs. McVally, lead.

Chemics Improve Industry Products

The world is rapidly turning to chemistry to find ways and means for improving the products of its industries and petroleum chemistry is playing an increasingly important part in that program.

The work being undertaken by petroleum chemists may be divided into two major classifications, one the use of chemistry to improve the characteristics of oil products such as motor fuels and lubricants; and the other the application of chemistry to convert petroleum fractions into products of industry such as synthetic alcohols, resins and solvents.

The former classification represents chemistry's contribution to the world in making one barrel of crude oil do what two barrels were required to do only 20 years ago.

In this respect oil chemistry may be said to have saved 12 billion barrels of crude oil.

Mr. A. Howarth is in the city for a day or two on business. He motored up on Monday last.

The first in the Grand Challenge was won by the rink skipped by Miss Jessie Sawyers of Edgerton, with Mrs. Brown playing third, Mrs. Stratton second and Mrs. Blair lead; second (toilet sets) was won by the rink skipped by Mrs. O. The toast to "The King" was given by Mrs. E. Springbett, and that honoring "The Visitors" by Mrs. Carlisle, each visting skip responding in a fitting manner.

During the evening community singing, led by Mrs. H. Courrier, and readings given by Miss M. Darnah, Mrs. Courrier and Mrs. D. Sawyer, of Edgerton filled in pleasant intervals the affair closing with the National Anthem.

Railways Contribute To Expansion

Canadian steam railways last year had an estimated payroll of $193,549,500 divided among 138,733 employees according to an article by S. J. Hunsford, President and Chairman of the Canadian National Railways and President of the Trans-Canada Air Lines, in the February issue of "The Canadian National Magazine."

"The Canadian railways," he stated, "played a vital part in opening various sections of the Dominion to development. Their efficient services are no less vital in making possible further expansion of industrial Canada. The Canadian National Railways are striving for increased efficiency. Increased efficiency will benefit not only ourselves but also that other army of Canadians whose welfare and activities are so closely tied in with the industry of railroading."

Contest Is Theme Comedy Feature

Scaled to accommodate the desires of some segments of the family trade, "Love in a Bungalow" is a gag stunt dealing with what happens to two unmarried persons who win a contest for the best letter explaining why they consider themselves the world's happiest husband and wife.

"Mary Callahan" is hostess in a reality promotion model bungalow, into which brazen, but likeable, "Jeff Langan" injects himself. His charm, wit and resourcefulness quickly cause Mary to forget her anger at the intrusion. One thing and another, especially a visit to a food fair, kindle the spark of romance. Then they hear about the "Happiest Married Couple" contest and enter it for a lark—and win the grand prize. Then they both realize that they are really in love—so they get married and collect the $5,000.

Our Farm News Letter

Contributed by

B. Leslie Enslie, C.D.A. (Glas.) F.C.S.

FROM TILLING TO GRAZING
FROM PASTURE TO FOREST

"When the lone kindred, in the time long vanished, Conquered the soil and fortified the keep,
No seer foretold the children would be banished
That a degenerate loss might boast his sheep."

In these lines the author of "The Lone Shieling" lamented the depopulation of the Scottish Hebrides and the exile of the Selkirk settlers whose hearts beat heavily beyond the Atlantic sea. They went to make room for the sheep which a ruthless landlord figured would bring in more revenue than he could collect in rents from the Highland crofters.

Now the secretary of the Hardwick sheep-breeder association inveighs, scarcely less bitterly against the Forestry Commissioners who, in Eskdale and Ennerdale districts of the Scottish border, are displacing sheep with trees, planting the choice winter-feeding lower slopes of the fells while leaving the barren tops unplanted. He estimates that 3,500 sheep have been banished already and extols the merits of the Hardwick breed. They could jump fences of nearly four feet high, greyhounds, and young stags, right off the fell, would face traffic on the road without flinching. He had known a ram, with a short run, charge and break through a barn door. Yet the mutton is tender without and richly flavored.

These qualities, says B. Leslie Enslie, have been both bred and fed into the sheep, for the slopes of the rugged mountains they graze grow nutritious, bone-building herbage fortified by fertilizers high in phosphates. The trees will flourish in this fertile soil, and the next protesting cry may be, "Woodman, spare that tree."

BOTANICAL NOTES FOR MARCH

There is supreme comfort in the knowledge that spring is really close at hand. Everyone (even those who appear to be quite indifferent to the miracles of plant life, and those jaundiced cynics, much against their will) is thrilled by this thought.

Those who love plants experience that ecstasy of delight every spring when renewing that tender sympathy which binds them to the very early flowers. They know quite well that even under the snow of the woodland floor the unfortunately named but delicate liverwort (preferably, but so well-known as squirrel cup) is slowly but surely uncurling her young stems and leaves wrapped in furry but fashionable fur; and that under the influence of the warming sun she will soon push her way through the russet of last year's leaves and paint them with resplendent splashes of blue, lavender, purple, pink and white.

Yet these spring flowers will continue to bloom with intoxicating sweetness; the spring birds will continue to trill with ecstasy; the spring sun will continue to lavish his same old healthful largesse in spite of wars, rumors of wars, dictators and other constant noise. Yes! Indeed there is comfort for all.

With the first glimpse of these dainty squirrel cups each spring comes the same dear, sweet thrill; as some people will perhaps have experienced when meeting an old sweet heart!

Yes! March certainly has her charms. Even when her shouting, boisterous winds flog the countryside and wild grey clouds stampede across the pale blue.

"Trees can smile in light at the sinking sun
Just as a storm comes, as a girl would look"

On a departing lover—most serene. Especially during the winter months do evergreens exemplify Browning's verse, in that they stand serene and smile in face of the following blast; and a stern opposition—the threat of extermination. They are, however, an ancient family with tradition; therefore they will only bow to the inevitable after a grim struggle with those parvenus—the broad-leaved trees.

Amongst other confers will be noticed the graceful pines of the spruce, the alpine firs in bold relief against the pale blued March sky.

Of them all the balsam fir is the most famous, as it is the typical Christmas Tree, and deservedly so when it is known that upon drying it does not rot. The floor-rug value of the balsam fir is identified by its two-ranked, pale-lined leaves, which are lustrous and dark green above, about one-half inch long, flat (not four-sided as those of most of the spruces) grooved and blunt or sometimes slightly notched at the tip. Spruce leaves are sharp pointed.

On the branches near the top of the tree the cones stand erect, glistening with drops of sweet-scented balsam, while spruce cones hang down. This same balsam exudes from bruises in the smooth bark. By piercing the white blisters and systematically wounding branch and trunk the balsam is made to flow freely, when it is said to be collected as a commercial enterprise in some parts of Canada.

Balsam is used in laboratories and in medicine. Pillows are stuffed with ago—General rains in India, wheat and oilseed crops promising—Increase in Siamese rice area.

the fresh leaves. The wood enters into the manufacture of wood pulp and is made by some builders into doors and window frames. It is not, however, so hard as spruce wood.

There are four true firs found in Canada. They are the Balsam, Alpine, Grand and Red or Amabilis Fir. The balsam extends across Canada, while the other three are far western. The Douglas Fir (also called Douglas Spruce) is neither a true fir nor is it a true spruce. This will be better understood when it is explained that the spruces belong to a group of plants (or genera) botanically known as Picea, the fir—Abies, and the Douglas Fir—Pseudotsuga. The word Pseudotsuga means false hemlock.

The Douglas fir is found in Alberta and British Columbia. It is the largest of all Canadian trees, usually attaining a height of 150 to 200 feet. Unlike the erect bractless cones of the true firs, those of the Douglas hang down and have three-pointed, very conspicuous bracts attached to the back of the scales. The Douglas fir leaves are sharp-pointed in contrast to the blunt leaves of the true fir.

CANADA'S CHARTERED BANKS
VALUE YOUR GOODWILL

WHETHER you deal with a bank or whether you don't, some time soon—say the very next time you are passing the bank's door—why not drop in and get acquainted? You're sure of a welcome, because the bank manager wants to know you. So find out for yourself what kind of fellow he is. And before you leave, take a good look at his staff.

The head offices are manned and managed by just that sort of man! Every general manager in Canada started in the banking business as a junior in some small branch, and rose from the ranks.

(This is your introduction to a series of chats in the course of which you will be surprised at how little of mystery and how much of service there is in the business of banking in Canada.)

Canada's chartered banks want your goodwill.

It is only by goodwill that banks make a living—and bankers are your fellow-citizens, the same sort of people as you are.

Of course, bankers have heard all the old, threadbare jokes about the banker's glass eye, his delight in humiliating worthy souls who ask for loans even that grand old chestnut about lending the umbrella when the sun is shining and taking it back when it rains.

So if you think you have a new joke, drop in and spring it on your local bank manager. He'll appreciate it. And if it turns out that he's heard it before, he'll still have his sense of humour handy enough to get a chuckle, should you chance to tell him that the banks are being held responsible for the latest storms, or for the loss of the hockey game, or for his own neglect to summon prosperity from just around the corner.

Which should prove to you that your banker is, after all, a very human person. He likes people. All bankers like people. And they want people to like them.

Banks want to be helpful. They realize that they succeed only as the people of the community succeed. Enlightened self-interest? Well yes—but not altogether.

Your local manager will tell you that banks are not stiff-necked; that they do not enjoy refusing loans.

They'd be foolish if they did, for goodwill is the whole core and pith and substance of successful banking.

Intelligent people like plain talk. So in the talks to follow we shall be frank in giving you the facts about banks, bank operations, bank ownership, bank cash, currency, loans and interest. We would like you to read them all.

As we've said before, banks want and need your goodwill. No bank can get along without it. Telling the facts is probably the best method of winning it.

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking with you. He will be glad to answer your questions, from the standpoint of his own experience. The next article in this series will appear in this newspaper. Watch for it.

ACT SAYS MUST PUBLISH TITLES

The great majority of people, who have had any experience with the claims of the Performing Right Society, will be heartily approving of the Bill passed by the Federal Government respecting and regulating the actions of the Company. The Performing Right Society claims to hold copyrights on 2,000,000 musical numbers, including the majority of the popular songs and were attempting to collect fees from any organization or firm using them.
If any church or other organization allowed any of the 2,000,000 musical numbers to be sung or played at any entertainment, then the Society claimed the right to collect a fee. It also attempted to collect a license fee of $10.00 from the Village Council to cover musical numbers played at dances in the Town Hall at any time. At first a fee of $25.00 was asked, but the amount was reduced to $10.00. The Council refused to pay the amount and a lawsuit was threatened. Mammoth Agricultural Society was also asked to pay a fee to cover musical numbers played at dances or by a band or orchestra on the day of the fair. The request was refused, but for a time it appeared the Performing Right Society had a legal right to collect such fees. Owners of hotels or restaurants where a radio is installed, are also assessed a minimum fee of $10.00, up to much larger amounts in some cases.

Under the provisions of the Bill just passed the Society must publish the titles of the 2,000,000 numbers it claims to control by copyright. The claim has been disputed as many times and the publication of the list may cause the Society to have to prove its claim to control of a large number of selections. In the case of radio programmes it must collect from the broadcasting companies and not from the owner of the radio. The public are also safeguarded in various other ways. The Bill was passed through the House without any opposition, a number of Members of Parliament claiming the Society was operating a racket.

There are approximately 32,000,000 telephones in the world of which nearly 17,000,000 are in America.

NO THRILLS WORTH THIS PRICE

The world teeters on the brink of a volcanic abyss. Sherman renamed what's in the abyss but did not change it. The principal thing that keeps some from shoving the world over is the thought that this time they might get scorched a bit.

If there is still anyone who agrees with Mussolini that war is "the quintessence of beauty" let him read the following, selected by The Living Age from The Official History of Australia in the War.

Gallipoli! "Three minutes to go," said Colonel White. Then simply "Go!"
In an instant the first line, all eagerness, leapt over the parapet.
Facing them, not a stone's throw away, were hundreds of the enemy, lining two-deep their front trench and others behind it. The instant the Light Horse appeared, there burst upon them a fusillade that rose within a few seconds from a fierce crackle into a continuous roar in which it was impossible to distinguish the report of rifle or machine gun. Watchers saw the Australian line start forward across the skyline and then on a sudden grow limp and sink to the earth,
"as though" said one eye-witness,
"the men's limbs had become string".
Save those who fell back wounded to their own trench all the rest lay dead four or six yards from the parapet. The 10th went forward to meet death instantly as the 8th had done, the men running as swiftly and straight as they could at the Turkish rifles.

With that regiment went the flower of the youth of Western Australia, sons of the old pioneering families, youngsters—in some cases two or three from the same home—who had flocked to Perth at the first outbreak of war with their own horses and saddlery in order to secure enlistment in a mounted regiment of the Australian Imperial Force. Men honored and popular the best loved leaders in sport and work in the West, then rushed straight to their death.

The Song of Happy Motorist!

Our Garage is the place to get
The old car put in shape.
We fit the pistons and the rings,
So no oil can escape.
We tighten up the "smoking" spots
Adjust the gas and spark;
And fix her up in just such shape,
You'll not your "muckies" bark!
We're death on squeaks and groans and such;
We know just where to look;
For though it holds its mysteries,
To us it's "open book".
We'll hide that shabby coat of paint
Beneath a brand new skin.
We'll silence up the body, and We'll put out all the din.
We'll make the old car purr and sing,
And shine like never before
She'll climb the toughest hills and grades
And still come back for more.
She'll lose her avaricious greed
For oil and gasoline
And save you coin, and ease the strain
On your poor graying hair!
You'd never think that your old car
Could have such smooth control,
Until you've had it in to us
In care of Doctor Al.

"The power and economy of the RD4 far surpasses my expectations. During seeding it handled, without, any sign of overload, one 8-foot one-way, one 9-foot one-way, each with seeding attachments, and at the same time pulled 17 feet of packers behind. This load was hauled in third gear, but we found it possible to use fourth gear as the ground dried out.

Yes! Worry may be cast aside with a seedless orange. No thick membrane between the segments. No seeds or pits to be dug out with an orange spoon! Slice it, cut it in small pieces, divide it into segments, or run it for juice — it's as easy as orange to handle and a satisfying orange to serve.

Now that California Navel oranges are on the market, it seems fitting to feature two or three recipes for winter dainties that are both tasty and healthful. The fact that oranges have an astringent reaction when taken into the system will make these dishes particularly desirable to those who eat heavily of acid-reaction foods in cold weather. They may be looked upon as balancing dishes that are good as well as good for you.

These libraries, which owe their initial inception to Her Excellency The Lady Tweedsmuir, are made possible through the joint efforts of the Association of Canadian Bookmen and other public-spirited organizations and citizens throughout Canada. The North-West Grain Dealers' Association has made itself responsible for the expense of housing, distribution and circulation of the books.

Members of families, regardless of which elevator system or company they patronize, may obtain the loan of books from this library without charge. ## AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINISCENCES OF OTHER DAYS"

TEN YEARS AGO

William Alfred Card, a young English lad who was employed on the Isaac Stouffer farm at Greenshields, was accidentally shot and killed while cleaning a gun last week. The young man had come to Canada last year under the Headley "learn to farm" plan.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smale and family returned on Tuesday from an extended holiday spent at the coast.

Mr. Rollo A. Thur was badly injured when the horse he was riding slipped and fell on him. He was taken to the Vermilion hospital for treatment.

Mr. G. Ramer arrived in town to take over his duties as chief clerk of the freight sheds.

The old Crawford bungalow on Queen's street was last week bought by Rev. Father Murphy to be used as the church residence.

Mr. Jack U'ren of the Park hotel left at the week end for Rochester to receive medical treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morton moved into their new home which they recently finished building on their farm near the Vermilion bridge.

Mr. Mel Dixon met with a nasty accident when he was thrown from a horse and in striking the ground, broke his ankle and received serious head injuries.

HEATH

On Thursday, February 24th, Miss Daniela gave a party at the Arm Lake school to celebrate the sixth birthday of Kenneth Davis.

Mr. A. Watson, of Artland, Sask., spent the week-end at Arm Lake.

St. Patrick's W.A. held their card party and dance on Friday night. Prize winners at cards were: Miss Dorothy Spornitz, Mrs. B. Ford, Miss Elsie Ford, Mr. MacCormie, Mr. J. Ford and Mr. O. Page.

For several weeks the Rev. Mr. Love has not been able to conduct services at St. Patrick's church on account of the "road between here and Edmonton" which he hopes to resume services this Sunday.

Mr. H. Polvin returned home from the hospital this week and is feeling much better after his operation.

Sheepskin Flats

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Rasmussen on the birth of their daughter.

Mr. J. Wilkinson is confined to her bed. We hope to see her up and around again.

Miss Gertrude Wilkinson celebrated her sixth birthday a few days ago.

Mr. Vernon Templeton, who was stricken down with the flu, we are pleased to see is up and around again.

The Flats was well represented at the dances held at Rosedale and White Cloud.

Mr. E. Johnson is still under the weather. We extend our sympathies to him. We extend our sympathies to all those of the district who are laid up with the flu. It is impossible to enumerate them all.

There are just enough children attending school to keep it open. The rest are at home sick.

Appearing in The Star of Feb. 16th, under the Sheepskin Flats' news, there was an article regarding the farmers of the district pulling through the winter on meat and spuds. I, as your correspondent in this district, wish it to be distinctly understood that I am not responsible for such an article.

SYDENHAM

Mrs. F. Church has been spending a few days at the home of her sister, Mrs. B. Hodgkins, in town.

Mrs. J. St. Peter was visiting in the district on Sunday.

A meeting was held in Wainwright on Wednesday for the directors of the Mutual Sydenham Telephone Company.

The early spring-like weather of the past few days is a very welcome change after the long spell of cold.

Mrs. F. Dixon was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Seabrook on Wednesday.

On Wednesday, Mrs. O. Croteau and Miss P. Romo were visiting with Mrs. W. G. McKay at her home.

The world's largest consumer of sugar is the United States.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Rev. Thos. Murphy, pastor of St. Andrew's (Pres.) church for the past three years, handed in his resignation which was accepted with regret last week.

One of the heaviest blizzards in the history of the town visited the district last week when the temperature also dropped considerably. Starting at around 11 a.m. Sunday morning it continued all that night and by the next morning there were drifts on the streets two and three feet deep. Both the east and west trains were delayed.

The box social and dance at Aspen school, organized by Mr. J. Monaghan in aid of the Canadian Red Cross fund, netted that society some $103.25.

A large crowd turned out to witness the marriage vows exchanged between Miss Sophia Stearns of Wainwright and Mr. Peter Voras of Fabry, which took place on Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m. in St. Thomas (Ang.) church. Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was held in the Wainwright Hotel, ending with a dance.

Mrs. J. L. Gerow left for the city to undergo medical treatments.

The Community sing-song which was held in St. Andrew's (Pres.) church was well attended on Tuesday evening last. The singing was led by Mrs. B. N. Fraser.

Mr. W. S. Clark left on a three-weeks' business trip to Belleville and other Eastern points.

In order to take up another line of work, Mr. J. Kilgannon resigned his position with the Alberta Government "phones."

Mrs. J. Talmie, wife of the night operator at the C.T.R. depot, and family arrived in town at the week-end to take up residence.

GREENSHIELDS

Mr. Paul Leduc is suffering from a broken leg which he received when the horse he was riding fell on him.

Mrs. R. I. Bond is in hospital suffering from an infected tooth.

The Young People's Club will hold their regular meeting on Wednesday, March 2nd, in the hall.

Little Bunny Bond has been visiting at Mr. and Mrs. A. Phipps' for the past week.

The regular meeting of the Ladies Aid will be held on Wednesday, March 9th, at the home of Mrs. R. H. Ott. Everyone is requested to bring an Irish joke.

The DIAL REVIEW by Walter Dales

"Will it wear well?"

That's the question program directors ask themselves when sifting up a broadcast. Can it continue with good listener interest? "Town Topics" conducted by Cecil Gould, celebrated its 100th anniversary, February 28th. It has won well. Mr. Gould's background has furnished enough variety, color and zest to assure many more glib commentaries. Mr. Gould was asked how long he had spent preparing his 100th anniversary broadcast.

Said Mr. Gould: "I wrote it in an hour and a half, but it took me fifty-one years to gather the information!" CJOA audiences hear him Mondays and Wednesdays at 10:15 p.m.

Watch this column next week for a complete list of religious broadcasts. Here are a few current schedule changes over CJOA: 5:45-6:00 Monday through Thursday, Gosses What; 5:30-5:45 Wednesday, Hattie White; 9:30-9:45 Thursday, The People's Weekly.

Starting March 2nd, 8 p.m., Western Canadian radio audiences will hear a program calculated to make them sit up and think. "Dr. Query," the show will bring to your loudspeakers a bunch of brain teasers to test your general knowledge of Canada and Canadian activities. Dr. Query's quizzes originate in Winnipeg and are released through CJOA in Edmonton.

Starting next Monday, March 7th, radio listeners will hear a new series of programs called "Road of Life." This inspiring presentation will be heard Mondays through Fridays in the spot recently occupied by the popular Houseboat Hummel serial, which has been completed. If you're eager to hear the story from the very beginning, dial 730 kilocycles, Monday morning at 11:30, March 7th.

RADIO QUESTION BOX

Q: What is a sure way of becoming popular over the radio?—L.S.

Answer:—There is no sure way. Most radio Big Names credit their success to sincerity. Sincerity is widely detected by radio listeners. A famous radio personality says: "The surest way to make the listener like you is to be like your listeners. Think of them and not how you are sounding. Remember radio audiences are made up of fine men and women—good fellows ready to appreciate you if you will appreciate them."

Q:—I would like to write plays for radio. How should I go about learning?—F.N.

Answer:—Listen to radio dramas and analyze them. Write to the production manager of your nearest station and ask him for a sample script. Be sure to enclose a large self-addressed envelope.

The Legion Notice Board

Next Monday, March 7th, will be the regular monthly executive meeting night and we hope all who may be interested will try and be present and help to formulate some definite idea for the celebration of Vimy Day which is fast approaching.

We have received a copy of a letter from the Chairman of the Canadian Pension Committee to the General Secretary of the Legion which reads in part as follows and will be of considerable interest to certain pensioners:

"In accordance with amendments which have been approved, pensioners in receipt of 50 percent pension in respect of their amputations or wounds will receive an additional 10 percent on reaching the age of 55; a further 10 percent on reaching the age of 57; and a further 10 percent on reaching the age of 59. Pensioners in receipt of pensions at the rate of 60 percent will receive an additional 10 percent on reaching the age of 55 and a further 10 percent on reaching the age of 57. Pensioners in receipt of pensions at the rate of 70 percent will receive an additional 10 percent at the age of 55. These amendments will be effective as from the 1st of February, 1938."

For the benefit of ex-soldiers who come within the above categories, I would also mention that the whole thing is automatic and no application for consideration will be necessary. The date of birth as given on the pensioner's attestation papers will be accepted, unless the pensioner produces evidence satisfactory to the Commission that such date is incorrect.

What The Movies Didn't Tell About The Bengal Lancer

One afternoon about ten years ago, a slim, serious young Englishman, by the name of Yeats-Brown, came before my fireplace in Forest Hills and kept me spellbound for an hour with tales of his adventures in the mystic and fabled lands of the East. He was thirty-nine years of age, and ever since he was sixteen, he had seen death on many battlefields.

He had been a prisoner of war in England and Constantinople. He had fought the Turks on the scorched and muddy fields of Gallipoli, and he had fought the Germans in the muddy fields of Flanders. He had written a book entitled "The Bloody Ten Years," and he, like Lawrence of Arabia, I said, was a quiet, soft-spoken English gentleman more interested in poetry and philosophy than in fighting.

He hadn't lived just one life like most of us. In his first life, when he finally wrote the story of his hectic career in which he had met many of the things he told me that afternoon, he called the book, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer." And it made one of the most gripping and stirring stories ever told in Hollywood. But, like most Hollywood films based on biographies, it had been very far from the facts. Yeats-Brown's astonishing career.

vides that the province has power to "regulate the credit of the people of Alberta" is upheld by the Supreme Court in a decision which is expected to be handed down next week. Legislation will be introduced into the house at Edmonton to "provide the people of Alberta with additional credit," it was rumored in legislative corridors on Friday.

It was also stated that even if the act now before the Supreme Court is held ultra vires, the "additional credit" bill will be brought into the house in changed form.

Grown in Massachusetts, a squash measured 4½ feet in length and 22 inches in diameter, weighing 105 pounds.

HOW OUR MONEY IS MADE
The editor of a small Alberta country newspaper retired recently, moved to the city and deposited $50,000 in a local bank. For thirty years he had been publishing this small-town paper and when he quit he had $50,000 to his credit.

When asked for the secret of his financial success he said: "I attribute my ability to retire with a $50,000 bank account after thirty years on a country newspaper to close application to work, always leaving to the bank and letting the chips fall where they may; the most rigorous rules of economy, never spending a cent foolishly; overlastingly keeping at my job with a whole heart, and the death of an uncle who left me $49,999.50."

To make money under Canadian farming conditions calls for plenty of speedy, thrifty power... not sport-model lines or trick features, but proved performance and proved economy... not merely operating costs when new, but TOTAL cost over many years. Hundreds of reports by owners of Case tractors 4 to 8 years old show that Case has cut power costs to the lowest levels in tractor history.

Call on your Case dealer for facts and figures. See how Case gets fast, flexible power from a wide variety of low-cost fuels... only standardized tractor fuel from distillates to gasoline. See how Case tractors have run 4 to 8 years of upkeep averaging less than one cent an hour on low-cost fuels... how their owners expect them to give 10 to 17 years of work. Compare your costs with theirs... see how much you can save in 1938 and for years to come by changing to Case NOW.

IT COSTS LESS TO FARM WITH CASE

A TURKISH GALLERIE, a little harmless distortion. So when Yeats-Brown, all dolled up as a German governor, in a picture hat, with a veil, a black fox scarf and a shoulder bag, stepped over his hands, minced into the cafe, the Russian prince would jump to his feet, bow respectfully and kiss the lady's hand. And the Turkish detectives would smile at one another knowingly and shrug their shoulders. After all, even a suspect Russian prince was entitled to a little romance.

He was unable to get out of Turkey disguised as Mademoiselle Josephine, so he played another role. Overnight, he changed his sex and nationality and became a Hungarian mechanic who had lost his job in a munition factory. He grew a small, turned-up mustache and wore a derby hat, a pair of steel-rimmed glasses, a stained white vest, and a pair of shoes with elastic sides. Actually he looked like a second-rate comedian, but the Turks never doubted that he was the real McCoy.

I asked Yeats-Brown to tell me of his narrow escape from death. He said it occurred one day while he was out "pig-sticking." He and his men had flushed a great boar out of the bamboos. The savage pig was racing across the field, his huge tusks glistening in the sun. Yeats-Brown, mounted on his polo pony, was in hot pursuit. Just as he drove his spear into the pig, his horse stumbled; and horse, pig and Yeats-Brown went down in a screaming whirling, helpless mass of tangled legs and clawing forefeet.

Yeats-Brown was pinned under his kicking horse; the pig, impaled upon the spear, was struggling to get up. The horse heaved. And the pig got loose just as Yeats-Brown leaped to his feet and a rescue party rode up. He had lost a tooth, sprained a thumb, and his head was battered and mangled from head to foot.

But I suppose the strangest episode in Yeats-Brown's strange career was the time he disguised himself as a woman. He had been fighting the Turks out in Mesopotamia or "Mesopot" as he called it. He had been taken prisoner by the Turks and had not been able to get out of the city. The Turkish authorities were searching for him frantically.

Naturally they were looking for an English officer, so they never suspected a German governor who used to meet a Russian prince in one of the cafes. The Russian prince was also being watched by the authorities, but the sentimental

MODERN WOMEN

EARLENE WHITE
President of The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

The first woman to receive a doctor's degree in a German university was Margaret E. Mahon in 1832. She was awarded a fellowship in 1895 and was in charge of the department of physics at Barnard College, New York.

As an outgrowth of the work started by the District of Columbia Business and Professional Women of Washington, D. C., in 1912, the Foundation for Americans of Mature Age has recently been incorporated with Agnes D. Ward as president and Mac R. Murray as vice-president. With a fund of $300 the club began to pay for job clothing, pay for manicures and haircuts to make women applicants for jobs presentable. Its aim now is to improve conditions for persons who, because of mature age, have to combat the age prejudice.

Any woman who can keep 8,000 names in her head must be a marvel. I am told that this is the feat of Ann Brooks, a reader for one of the large national clipping bureaus.

The PENTHOUSE MURDER

"Oh, no, sir; she has a stage name. Mademoiselle from Armentieres." He was saving her money to help her old father over in France buy a piece of land, she told me.

"Do you know which night club it is she works in?"

"No; but it's somewhere in the West Fifties."

"Tony!" the Inspector called, and Detective Martineau came in.

"Her name's Marceau, Chief," he said.

"I know it, and her stage name's Mademoiselle from Armentieres, and she works in a night club in the West Fifties every Saturday night. Now get busy and find the dame," the Inspector ordered. Then he turned to the others.

"We've gone as far as we can go tonight," he said. "It's almost three o'clock in the morning. Say we adjourn to some place where we can get a bite and then try to get some sleep between now and two-thirty this afternoon. Max, if you'll be responsible for Doane, I'll let him go in your custody. Agreed?"

"I'll produce him whenever he's wanted, Dan," responded the lawyer.

"There are one or two things I wish asked Michaelis.

"I give you right on that," agreed the Inspector. "What's your theory now?"

"I'll tell you about it after we've talked with Miss Lane," replied the lawyer, as the group broke up. "And I don't think I'll go with you, Dan; I want to get Archie to bed in a place where he'll be sure of a night's sleep, and I've got some work to do myself."

By the way, Doctor, he went on addressing the Medical Examiner. "Who would you call the best authority in New York on narcotics?"

"Dr. Smith of Cornell Medical College," replied the examiner, after a moment's thought. "George F. Smith."

"Do you happen to know who stands high in glandular therapy?"

"Two or three good men. Bartow is perhaps the most thorough, as well as the most competent."

"Thanks, Doctor. A client of mine wanted to know. Good night, Dan. Frazier going with you? Good night, Martin. We're all to meet at Conter's Street at two-thirty? Correct. Good night."

He hailed a passing taxi and climbed into it, accompanied by Doane.

"I'm taking you to my club," he said.

here. Where is the Doc, Larkin?"

Inspector Flaherty asked of his secretary.

The Medical Examiner was waiting outside. "I personally made a minute examination of the body, as requested," he reported. "I found no scratches or abrasions of the skin, but in the calf of the left leg there was a puncture, somewhat larger than a pin prick."

"Could it have been made by a hypodermic needle, Doctor?" asked Michaelis.

"That is what it suggested to me," was the reply.

Again Max Michaelis smiled his enigmatic smile as he thanked the medical man.

"What about those telephone calls?" he asked the Inspector. Larkin laid a memorandum on Flaherty's desk.

"The telephone company reports that there were no calls from Miss Lane's phone between two p.m. and eleven twenty-four," the Inspector read.

"But she telephoned me at eleven o'clock!" exclaimed Doane.

"They haven't any record of it," replied Inspector Flaherty, glancing at Max Michaelis. The lawyer smiled his enigmatic smile again.

"My hunch is rapidly becoming a cinch, Dan," he said. "Dr. Martineau had the girl, Adele?"

"Waiting outside," replied the Inspector. "I wish you'd tell us what you've got on your mind, Max. I'm all at sea."

"Not the first time," retorted Michaelis. "I can't tell you a thing, Dan, until I get a telegram that I'm expecting any minute now. Have Larkin call my house and see if it's been delivered there, won't you, while we talk to the girl?"

Adele Marceau alias Mademoiselle from Armentieres, proved to be a fluent but apparently straightforward witness, and was evidently stunned and horrified at the tragedy in her mistress' apartment. Under the alternate questions of the Inspector and Max Michaelis, with the Assistant District Attorney occasionally intervening, she said that she was alone in the apartment all Saturday afternoon following the weekly cleaning of the place. She had permission to leave every Saturday at six and not return until Sunday night. Miss Lane had not returned at a quarter of six, but Adele got ready to go out and had her car when Miss Lane arrived, accompanied by M'sieur Henderson.

M'sieur Henderson, Adele said, did not come in, but left Miss Lane at the door of the apartment.

"You knew Mr. Henderson? You had seen him before?" asked Max Michaelis.

"But yes. At the studio many times. Also at the Folies Bergeres."

"Had you ever seen him at Miss Lane's apartment before?"

"Oh, but certainly. Two times three times—not so many as M'sieur Fitzgerald and, naturally, not so often as M'sieur Doane. But he sent flowers more often than any of the other gentlemen."

"Now, just what did Miss Lane say and do after she came in and before you left?" asked the Inspector.

"She said, 'Adele, I've got a pin in my clothes somewhere and it's sticking in my leg. See if you can find it.' I looked and there was a great pin sticking in her skirt. I took out and showed it to her. While I was looking for the pin she asked if her aunt had called. I told her no, nobody had called. She asked didn't Archie—she meant M'sieur Doane—call, and I said no. She said she'd call him up in a minute. She was talking off her hat and I stood around waiting to put her things away. She said I needn't wait, it was after six, and she could look after everything herself. So I went, and that is all, messieurs."

"Did you look the door after you went out? The upper lock?" asked the Inspector.

"But no, so long as Mademoiselle was in, why should I?" was the reply.

"Where did you go when you left the apartment?"

"But naturally, to the Folies Bergeres in Fifty-seventh Street, where

Special Tuna Casserole
Baked Rice Spanish Style
Surprise Salad
Homemade Relishes
Orange Shortcake with Orange Sauce
Beverage

The menu featured above presents something old, something new, nothing borrowed, nothing blue! Let's take the new first. The Tuna Casserole can be made from the emergency shelf kept adequate, stocked in every well-ordered home. The almonds add novelty and nutritive value but they may be omitted.

The Surprise Salad glorifies the parsnip. It is often called Mock Crab Salad. Try it to see why. A cabbage salad would be an equally good balance in this meal.

Although shortcake is said to be a favorite dessert for all ages, this Orange Shortcake is especially luscious. The oranges provide the vitamins and minerals so frequently lacking in winter diets.

Special Tuna Casserole (Serves 6)

1½ cups ground beef
2 cups onion, cut fine, with oil from one can
1 pound can of ready-to-serve cream of mushroom soup
2 tablespoons flour

1½ teaspoons Worcestershire or any favorite condiment sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Salt to taste

1 medium white pepper
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ cup salad almonds
8 lemon quarters

In a soupçon, gently sauté onion in oil drained from the can of tuna, until soft, but not brown. Blend in the flour. Add cream of mushroom soup and lemon juice. Stir well, reaches the boiling point and the chopped pimiento and tuna prepared in large flakes, and salted almonds. Heat, stirring carefully and as little as possible.

Put in a casserole set on a serving plate, garnish with bits of pimiento, and arrange lemon quarters on the plate. A squeeze of lemon on the individual servings adds the final filly of flavor to a tantalizingly delicious party supper or dinner dish that can be made in a few minutes.

NOTE: May be served on toast or in crostades; or for a complete dinner or luncheon main course, serve Special Tuna Casserole with noodles, green peas and baby carrots.

Surprise Salad (Serves 6)

2 cups shredded raw parsnips
½ cup cut celery
2 tablespoons minced pimiento
4 tablespoons horseradish
½ cup mayonnaise

Use a shredder not a grater on the shredded parsnips. This produces long flakes resembling crab meat. Combine all ingredients and serve plain or on any available salad greens. Surprisingly delicious.

Orange Shortcake (Serves 6)

For the filling, use:
14 to 1½ cup sugar
1½ cups Sunkist oranges, segmented
For the shortcake, sift together:

1½ cups general purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder

Work into the dry ingredients:
6 tablespoons shortening
Add:

1 cup milk
Sift to a soft dough. Divide into two portions. Pat into two ungreased baking pans. Bake in a hot oven (425° F.) for 15 minutes. Remove to serving dish. Cover bottom layer with orange segments. Top with second shortcake layer. Cover with the remaining segments. Serve with Orange Sauce prepared while shortcake is baking.

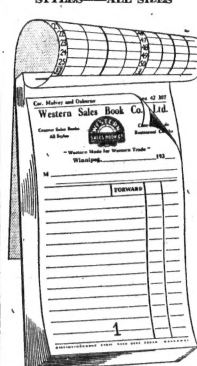

Orange Sauce

1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup sugar
1 cup Sunkist orange juice
Mix. Bring to a boil. Boil until clear (3 to 5 minutes). Remove from fire. Add:

2 tablespoons butter
Serve hot—a good sauce for puddings.

"You didn't stop anywhere on the way, between Miss Lane's apartment and the night club?" Inspector Flaherty demanded.

"But yes, I went to the cellar to give P'ncle Jenkins a newspaper. He is the janitor and we are great friends."

"How long were you there?"

"Only to give him the paper. A minute, perhaps two, perhaps three."

"You didn't hide anything in the cellar?"

"But no, m'sieur. What should I hide?"

"Did you ever see this before?" the Inspector demanded, holding the nickel-plated revolver from the drawer of his desk. The girl gave a startled cry but regained her poise instantly.

"Did you ever see this before?" the Inspector demanded.

you'd do for me, though."

"Shoot!" said Flaherty. "I'm getting sleepy."

"First, have Headquarters get a record of all telephone calls from this number between six o'clock and eleven forty-five."

"Second, ask the Medical Examiner to have Fritz's body taken to a mortuary and a careful examination of it made for any other wounds, scratches or abrasions of the skin on any part of the body."

"Hear that, Doc?" the Inspector said to the Medical Examiner. "I don't know what it means, except that Max has got one of his theories."

"Hardly even a theory yet," said Michaelis. "I need a few more facts. What I want to know, Doctor, is whether there is, anywhere on any part of Fitzgerald's body, anything of the sort that you medical men call, I believe, a 'solution of continuity' of the skin, and if so, of what nature and where."

"That's easy enough," the examiner assented. "I'll have the report in your office by noon, Inspector."

"One more thing before we go, Dan," the lawyer persisted. "I want you and Frazier to join me in Miss Lane's dressing room for a moment."

He led the way and the three women followed.

"Look at these shoes," said Michaelis, "and tell me whether the soles have been wet recently."

"Dry as a bone," grunted the Inspector.

"And this fur coat. Has that been wet-spotted with snow?"

"Doesn't look like it," the others agreed.

"She might have worn rubbers," suggested Frazier.

"Where are they?" asked Michaelis. He opened the door of a rack which held a dozen or more pairs of shoes and two or three pairs of overshoes.

"All neatly put away and clean and dry," said Flaherty.

"It doesn't look as if Miss Lane had ever gone out of this apartment after she came in at six o'clock, does it?"

"I'm going to turn you over to Peter's who has charge of the baths. After he has finished steaming and sweating and rubbing you, and fed you a glass of hot milk, your nerves will be calm enough to get some sleep. I'm going to my house and rout a few people out of bed over the telephone. I'll pick you up at noon and we'll have breakfast together. Don't worry. Everything will come out all right, so rest easy until I return."

"You've got a theory, then?" asked Doane.

"Not a theory yet; only a hunch. But you're not to think about this miserable business any more. Here we are at the club. Now don't forget to do what I told you. Keep calm."

He left Doane in the friendly hands of Peters and went to his own home, where he proceeded to carry out his threat to rout several persons out of bed by telephone and have explicit and definite talks with them.

"Miss Lane is doing splendidly," said Martin Frazier, as he joined Inspector Flaherty, Max Michaelis and Archie Doane in the Inspector's office at half past two on Sunday afternoon. I've just got word from the hospital. There was a close call, Carrel says, as she is what the doctors call a 'hemophile'—a bleeder; the blood doesn't coagulate. But a single transfusion fixed that after they had stopped the flow from the bullet wound. There was a puzzling angle to the case, they told me. For a long time after she regained consciousness she acted as if she had been under the influence of some narcotic and was having difficulty throwing off its effects."

Max Michaelis' eyebrows lifted and his thin lips curled in slight smile.

"Has that got something to do with your theory, Max?" asked the Inspector.

"It has everything to do with it," replied the lawyer. "Can we see Miss Lane? What did the doctor say?"

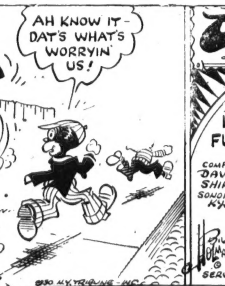

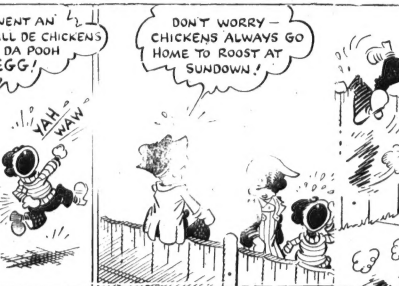

"He said that one person could talk to her for a few minutes," replied Frazier.

"We'll go up right away, but first let's see what other news we have

BUSINESS MEN LIKE THIS EXPENSE ITEM

Paying money out is always less pleasant than taking it in. Expense items are headaches for the business man, with one exception.

Money paid for advertising is the single exception. It's the only expenditure a business executive will regard with pleasure, for well he knows his money is being invested, not lost

Advertising is an investment -- something paid out today to assure greater income tomorrow. Building demand for merchandise thru advertising is just as important as buying goods. Advertising not only creates demand and builds good-will; it makes money for the man who uses it.

Canadian Garden Service

BY GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

BETTER MAKE PLANS

Final results in anything from a dog kennel to a mansion are vastly improved with a little preliminary planning. Gardening is no exception.

This hobby is not one that requires a lot of expensive gadgets or other equipment. A free seed catalogue, a few packages of good seeds, a few shrubs, some paper, pencil, a rake and a spade are the only absolutely necessary essentials. Like a good library, one can start from scratch, adding only as individual wishes dictate.

In the average case the amount of land at one's disposal is limited but even with but a few square yards amazing results can be achieved. Where space is small it is advisable to follow a strictly informal layout with the central portion of the garden clear of beds and shrubbery and devoted entirely to grass. Around the edges will be grouped beds of perennial and annual flowers, leading up to shrubs and vines along the walls or fence boundaries. This open centre adds to the effect of spaciousness and if the right boundaries are softened and partially hidden so much the better.

Where the garden is large, say over thirty feet in length experts advocate some screening off of some portion by bringing forward the surrounding shrubbery at one point, or by a hedge, wall of trees so that the whole affair will not be entirely visible from any one point of observation. This will add further to that air of spaciousness and also provide a secluded corner or two for a child's swing or sandbox or possibly a seat or trellis covered table, where on hot summer days the family may enjoy outdoor meals.

BIG SHRUBS AT BACK

In the general plan the taller shrubs, such as the common spirea, honey suckle, forsythia, syringa, or lilac are placed farthest back. In front go the smaller shrubs, like the barberry, in different shades of folage, the low spires, the deutzia or similar things that never exceed three or four feet in height at maturity. In this class, too, will come many of the perennial flowers, iris, phlox, peonies, plants of medium height and which like all perennials when once planted and established will come up each year and flower with very little further attention.

VINES HAVE PLACE

Where the garden is hedged around with fences, vines will come into the picture. These are obtainable in both perennial and annual assortment and they come in the self clinging type such as Boston Ivy and Virginia Creeper or those like the climbing roses, clematis, Dutchman's Pipe and Trumpet vine, which are best given support of a trellis or wire. Even the most attractive stone wall is improved by the addition of a vine. This should not be allowed to cover all of the stonework, of course, but merely a small part, the gloomy foliage making a most pleasing contrast with the gray or white stone.

There is a mistaken notion that clinging vines will harm masonry. In England where houses and churches have been so covered for centuries such an opinion is ridiculed. On stone or brick or stucco walls they will do no damage and their foliage keeps out oppressive heat in summer because the wall is always in the shade. As for weakening the structure the vine does exactly the opposite. A few years ago the authorities at a military post in United States were afraid that an old brick chimney was about to fall. There was a constantly enlarging crack near the top. No funds were available for removal and so a couple of vines were planted. They quickly twined about the old structure and today the crack is actually disappearing, the crumbling brickwork being firmly drawn together by the encircling vine.

NEXT WEEK more about garden plans, hints regarding sweet peas and vegetable growing.

Designed in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52. Size 38 requires 3 1/2 yards of 55-inch material, 2 1/4 yards of 1 1/2 inch bias for trimming.

NEAT HOUSE FROCK

Pattern 8798: Home sewers do not mind the work of making an extra house frock or two when the pattern is so simple to cut and easy to make as the style sketched.

Besides being so delightfully simple to put together, this frock is very becoming, slenderizing and practical.

The unusual square neckline with the pointed outline in the bodice portion is finished off with bias binding and smart button trim, giving the dress an attractive finish. The yoke and sleeves are cut in one as you can see by the diagram and the waist is drawn through the bound openings in front and tied in the back, thus fitting the dress to the figure. This frock would be lovely in printed percale, gingham or linen.

The new act permits officials of the public works department to erect snow fences upon any land alongside a highway and to have the right to enter upon the land from time to time to replace repair or remove such fences.

Furthermore, no person shall be entitled to any rent or compensation whatsoever for the erection of snow fences.

When the bill was debated in the legislature, Hon. W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works, stated that while most people were agreeable to having snow fences erected, there was the odd case where the land owner wanted compensation. At the same time the department was prepared at any time to adjust damages.

There were many places along the highways where snow fences formed the only way of preventing drifting. One member said farmers were usually glad to have snow fences erected as they assisted in preserving the moisture in the land.

At its convocations, the Alberta Motor Association has urged the need of proper snow fencing upon the provincial government as it is recognized as important that highways should be kept open during the winter.

It has been estimated that approximately half of the fishermen of the world are Japanese.

Whole armies of Celts used to march unclad into battle.

HEAVY TOURIST TREND WESTWARD

Western Canada, and especially Alberta, may see a record flow of tourists this season, judging by advance reports.

The unrest and increased dangers on the high seas and in Europe are expected to keep many American tourists at home. Bulk of the reports from Europe as to war preparations has resulted in decreased steamship bookings for the Mediterranean and also the Far East which are being avoided by many tourists.

Another important factor is the completion of many important highways in the Rocky Mountain region of the western states. This fact, it is believed, will bring a greatly increased number of U.S. tourists westward this season.

When they are in the west these tourists are certain to include Alberta parks and other scenic attractions in their travelling schedules.

They will not want to miss seeing this province, one that has been the tourists' lure for years.

Thermos bottles are hot all packed in the same way, and, for that reason milk will not keep in them for the same length of time.

When the warm weather takes the frost and dampness out of your chimney in the Spring, it often also takes out the mortar which is between the bricks! This allows the flames to connect with the dry lumber and shingles in the roof and is the cause of many fires. Your chimneys should be carefully inspected for loose mortar and broken brick.—Joe Welch, fire insurance.
